

PERSONAL INJURY CASE STUDY

“Without goals, and plans to reach them, you are like a ship that has set sail with no destination.”

--Fitzhugh Dodson

Mary walks her dog in her neighborhood along the same route she walks every day, when a driver fails to stop at the stop sign. The driver doesn't see Mary. At the last part of a second, Mary sees her brave doggy directly in the driver's path. Mary bends over, hurls her best friend out of the way and receives the blow. The driver slams into Mary, who flies over the hood of the car into the windshield. The man stares in distress at Mary's face, inches from his own. Mary doesn't stare back because Mary appears lifeless. After the crowd leaves, a confusing ambulance trip and final release from the hospital, Mary—assisted by her father, a tax attorney—spends hour after hour calling her medical providers over the next few months. Worried about the case, which interrupts her health care, Mary and her father negotiate with the driver's insurance company. The insurance company is unsympathetic. The insurance company's only need is to save money. The insurance company's offer saddens Mary. Mary's father refers her case and Goodrow Law takes over. Mary with confidence—and new-found relief—completes her health care and receives a payment more than triple the amount the insurance company offered. Doggy and Mary are healthy and happy despite the frightful event.

My wife was rear ended by a car and after getting out of the hospital, we began looking for lawyers. We decided to work with Mr. Goodrow and his team. Throughout the whole experience we felt that we had excellent representation because the team put my wife's health first. They also got us a great recovery monetarily. I've referred two friends and one co-worker to Mr. Goodrow and all have been just as happy with their experience. I know my family can count on him whenever we are in need of legal advice. We know we rely on his responsive attitude and ability to get the results we as clients are looking for. He is our attorney for life.
